MR. TRUMAN'S LETTERS.

Ben. C. Truman, special agent of the P. O. Department, and correspondent of the N. Y. Times and San Francisco Bulletin, who was lately here, has three letters in late numbers of the latter paper descriptive of this country, all written in an impartial and interesting style. One records the incidents in his trip with the Governor and his wife, from Maricopa to Wickenburg, and the Vulture mine, and one is a full and glowing picture of Prescott, from which we make the following extract:

"On the whole, Prescott is an interesting, thriving and delightful place. Good order prevails to a greater extent than in any mining town I have ever visited; the people for the most part are industrious and prosperous; the climate is charming; the site easy and picturesque; while the country around and about seems like an enchanted land."

From Capitol Hill a panorama of exquisite loveliness and long-drawn beauty dazzles the vision of the beholder. No inland town in this section of the country develops a picture of such exceeding diversity and rare magnificence. Sixty odd miles to the North, "San Francisco Mountain" uplifts itself majestically 15,000 feet above the level of the sea—a very giant among his fellows. It is evidently a volcanic pile, about 12 miles in length, of a huge granite foundation, built up with trimmings and minerals with a cluster of peaks, clothed in fleecy garments of perpetual snow. Encircling this lofty mass are a variety of hills, traversed with belts of spruce and pine timber, and intersected here and there by gigantic avenues of granite rock which slope in symmetrical proportions to the beautiful valley below, the neighboring portions of which abound in exquisite groves through which live and gambol innumerable deer. San Francisco Mountain belongs to the Mongolian range; and, looming up as it does upon its left flank, seems a detached spur rather than a connecting link of the above named chain. Northeast of this mountain, at a distance of 50 miles, are the Mogul Indians, celebrated for their industry, and for their uniform good will and peaceful disposition toward the whites. Fifty miles to the northwest is Bill Williams' Mountain, 9,000 feet high; and between the latter and San Francisco peaks are other well known earth giants, the most noted of which are Mounts Kennedy and Sitgreaves. The country between here and the "San Francisco" is varied, and consists of mountain, forest and plain, while here and there are groves of pines, and junipers, fir, oaks and cedars, and little patches of valley, susceptible of a high state of cultivation. Looking to the west, a singularly shaped mountain, called Mount Butte, some four miles from the town, is the prominent attraction. It is almost exact in its counterpoint of the celebrated Pinnacle Mountain, between Blue Water and Tucson, with decided advantage in location, situated as it is in a forest of towering pines, and detached from all neighboring elevations. To the right, 10 miles further, Granite Mountain lifts its rugged sides, scattered over with rugged patches of dwarf oaks and sweet pines and junipers. This elevation has been called by some Mount Hurley, in honor of the first Governor of the Territory. Along the base of this mountain, and through a rich agricultural vale called "Millers Valley," meanders the Mohave river, upon which many a pilgrim has been sent to his long account by the hostile savages who infest these mountain districts. To the east, and to the south, and in the lingering distance, heavily timbered with pine and black walnut, range after range of mountains tumble one upon another; while still beyond, are the mountains of precious metal, which are at present attracting the attention of thousands. Here are the "Lynx Creek," "Turkey Creek," "Big Bag," "Goodwin," "Quartz Mountain," and other rich mining districts, in which are located no less than ten mills, many of which are already in active operation. The clear, sparkling, never-falling streams, which run in every direction through these mountains, from the headwaters of the Verde, Agua Fria and Hassayampa, the chief tributaries of the Salinas and the Gila.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

York, rich in muniments, with a charter dating back nine hundred years, disputed the authority of the new creation; and it was not until the beginning of the present century that harmony was obtained, and the authority of the Grand Lodge of England recognized by all parties.

Freemasonry was introduced into the United States in 1730, and seems to have become popular at once. Washington was the Master of a lodge, and a greater part of the officers of the army of the Revolution were members of the fraternity. The corner stone of the hall we are about to leave was laid by a Governor of a State, then Grand Master of Maryland, and the building was inaugurated by the late General Winde, who succeeded him in the office. There is now a Grand Lodge in every State in the Union; and the noble edifices which are everywhere being built for the accommodation of the Order, while they do credit to the taste, manifest at the same time the wealth and prosperity of those to whom now belongs the duty of transmitting, in all their purity, to a distant future, the principles of Freemasonry.

You have, probably seen in the papers of the day that the corner stone of the old Masonic Hall, which we are about to abandon, has recently been unearthed. It was laid in 1814, more than a half century ago; and you must have been struck by the fact that notwithstanding the care taken to transmit to posterity the history of the building, and some brief chronicle of the times, two coins of gold, a half-eagle of 1790, and an eagle of 1811, with the inscription on the marble, were alone found to be unimpaired. The silver was blackened and defaced; the figures on the copper had disappeared; and some remains of decayed binding were all that testified to the decayed volumes that had been placed within the stone. Damp and mould and time, that eternum verum, in the short space of fifty years, had defeated the purpose of the builders to hand down to future ages some memorial of their transactions. But the eagle and the half-eagle were as bright as when the coins first issued from the mint. It would have been the same had the gold come from the foundations of an Indian shrine or a temple in the Forum. It will be the same when many years shall have rolled over the new resting place to which, to-day it is consigned, as have accumulated since the remote past.
